Kyna Maree always had a keen eye for fashion and design. On her wedding day, she knew exactly what type of headpiece she wanted to wear, but couldn't find it anywhere. Not one to give up easily, Kyna decided to create her own and that's what led to her to work as a Milliner and Bridal Headwear Specialist.

Kyna launched her own accessory label simply called by KYNA in 2016 and her business has gone from strength to strength since. Offering at first a small collection of Bridal accessories including headpieces, veils and capes, her collection now incorporates contemporary millinery pieces, exclusive headbands and a statement jewellery collection is set to launch this Autumn.

In 2018 Kyna launched a second website stash.ie to bring together her own designs with a wide and varied collection of accessories for the Bride and her entire Bridal party. Packed full of headpieces, jewellery, bags, umbrellas and bridal party robes stash.ie is one of Ireland's leading Bridal accessory stores.

When the pandemic hit the weddings stopped and Kyna took the time to restart, expanding the range in the void and come back stronger. Stash.ie is now bursting at the seams with accessories for the everyday, those special days & the wedding day too.

Stash.ie and byKyna.ie are fully functioning online stores but they share a beautiful studio in Co.Meath where Kyna carries out private one-to-one bridal styling appointments, offering clients a chance to try on their wedding dress with different looks and avail of expert styling advice.

Being part of the ACORNS community has been a key aspect of the success of this small business.

"I am never alone in business, I have a team to call on at all times, a warm community of powerful and inspiring women to learn from and I have made friends for life through the ACORNS program"

Providing early stage female entrepreneurs, living in rural Ireland, with the knowledge, support and networking opportunities to meet and even exceed their current aspirations.
