Ruth Graham is a deft perceptive illustrator with a huge flair for mood and message. A graduate of the renowned Falmouth University, she went on from that to establish her flourishing illustration business which services a diverse book of national and International clients, working across sectors such as the arts, education, enterprise and tourism.

Making imagery that educates, informs and persuades, Ruth is particularly passionate about working in areas of equality, sustainability and the environment and a lot of her work is centered on these values.

Ruth is also the lead illustrator and co-founder of collaborative content creators, Visual Newsdesk, with whom she creates captivating, vibrant graphics and animations. She is also a seasoned paper graphic harvester and can often be seen drawing on large boards at live events. Skilled in both digital and pen and paper drawing, Ruth has produced large scale paper illustrations for events and feedback sessions across the country.

Providing early stage female entrepreneurs, living in rural Ireland, with the knowledge, support and networking opportunities to meet and even exceed their current aspirations.
