Having grown up with entrepreneurial parents, Laura learned the importance and benefit of hard work and ambition. From an early age, Laura aspired to create a successful business of her own someday.

Before going out on her own, Laura worked in a number of senior leadership roles, primarily in the corporate world throughout Ireland. This established career has given Laura a proven track record to establish her commercial skills before launching her own business.

After many years of consideration, Laura took the decision to take the leap during the Christmas break of 2017. In January 2018, she resigned from her senior recruitment role with a national recruitment company to create her own recruitment business.

Headquartered in the Mid-West, Aspire Recruitment Limited was set up in January 2018. Laura, who resides in County Tipperary, set up Aspire Recruitment as a remote working organisation and works with organisations throughout Ireland.

Aspire Recruitment is a licensed professional recruitment agency. The fundamental value of Aspire Recruitment is to support people with their career aspirations. This ensures people secure roles they are aspiring to secure and ensures client companies hire people that aspire to work for their organisation.

During her time with ACORNS, Laura met supportive female businesswomen who continue to help her to focus on self-improvement and to sustain and develop her businesses further.

Aspire Recruitment works with large scale and multinational client organisations as well as indigenous SME businesses. The team in Aspire Recruitment already have international experience and an overseas market expansion plan is underway.

Providing early stage female entrepreneurs, living in rural Ireland, with the knowledge, support and networking opportunities to meet and even exceed their current aspirations.
