Ruth Graham is a deft perceptive illustrator with a huge flair for mood and message. A graduate of the renowned Falmouth University, she went on from there to establish her flourishing illustration business which services a diverse book of national and international clients, working across sectors such as the arts, education, enterprise and tourism.

Making imagery that engages and informs, Ruth is particularly passionate about working in areas of equality, social justice and sustainability, and a lot of her work is centered on these values.

Ruth has worked for many years creating captivating, vibrant infographics and animated pieces with various Irish organisations and government agencies. She is also a seasoned live drawer and can often be seen producing large scale illustrations for events and conferences across Ireland and beyond.
